Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 23 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Remaining wet and windy this evening and into Wednesday.

This Evening and Tonight:
A wet and windy evening with rain, heaviest in the north, continuing into the night. Rain will turn more showery in the south with winds easing by dawn. Feeling mild. Minimum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Wednesday:
Another unsettled day with outbreaks of rain continuing throughout much of the day and easing overnight. Less breezy than of late and staying mild. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Turning increasingly settled with plenty of sunshine and lighter winds throughout the period. Largely dry with the odd light shower possible. Some early fog and feeling mild.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.